About Indian Library Association

The Indian Library Association (ILA) is a premier association committed to the cause of Library Movement and Development in India and represents those who work in or advocate for Indian libraries. ILA has provided a wide variety of services and programs to its members and others in the library community, since its formation on September 13, 1933, when the Association was formally formed at the First All India Library Conference at Calcutta. Today, ILA has become the strongest and largest professional body in the field of library and information science.

The main objectives of the association are:

- Promote library movement in the country
- Development of library and information science education in India
- Training, research and development of library and information science professionals
- Co-operation with national and international organizations with similar objectives.
- Promotion as well as formulation of standards, norms, guidelines, etc. for management of Library and Information Systems and Services
- Accreditation of institutions imparting library and information science education and training
- Provide a forum for professionals to express their professional concerns and publication of materials

Karnataka State Women's University

Karnataka State Women's University, established in 2003 in the city of Vijayapura is the only Women's University in the state of Karnataka dedicated exclusively for women's education, with a vision of empowering women through higher education. The university has as its mission, making higher education more accessible and affordable for women particularly from rural and backward regions of North Karnataka. It is recognized under 2(f) and 12(B) of the UGC Act. It is accredited 'B' Grade (CGPA: 2.62) by the NAAC. 137 women's colleges spread in thirteen districts of North-Karnataka are affiliated to this University. It offers 32 P G Courses, P G Diploma and Certificate Courses in the Faculties of Arts, Commerce and Management, Social Sciences, Science and Technology and Education. Nearly 27000 students pursue their higher education leading to Bachelors, Masters' and Doctoral degrees.

Department of Library and Information Science

The Department of Library and Information Science, established in the year 2007-08 with a vision to "advance the well-being of women community through education, research and out-reach programs in Library and Information Science" aspires, to provide education in Library and Information Science through its various programs. Through education, research, and service, the department influences the interdisciplinary understanding, diverse interpretation, creation, and use of the emerging knowledge and information environments of the 21st century through innovative instruction and state-of-the-art technology. The department offers Certificate in Library Science, MLISc, M.Phil. and Ph.D programs.

The city of Vijayapura

'Vijayapura' - an important historical city is well known for its monumental heritage. It is associated with many prominent dynasties that ruled the city including Adil Shahi's. The city is known for its past glory, where the greatest mathematician and astronomer of medieval India Bhaskara II was born. This was the home for many sufi saints and a rich culture was instilled by great saints like Lord Basaveswara and Akkamahadevi. Woman of valour Sultana Chand Bibi was the Regent of Vijayapura during 1550-90. 'Gol Gumbaz' is the largest dome-

-ever built next in size only to St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. The other monuments include Ibrahim Roza, Jama Masjid, Taas Bowdi, Asar Mahal, Upali Buruz, Malik-Maidan-E-Tohf etc. Presently it is the headquarters of Vijayapura district. The city houses two P G centers, two medical colleges, two engineering colleges and a number of para-medical and general colleges besides the Karnataka State Women's University. Nearby places of interest include Almati Dam, Kudal Sangam, Badami Caves, Solapur, Pandharpur, Tuljapur, Kolhapur, Bande Nawaz Darga, Gulbarga, Hampi, Ganagapur, Basawana Bagewadi.

• Smartphones Can't Replace Libraries

Academic libraries aren't just expensive "vanity projects" but rather a vital part of the higher education ecosystem. While there may be other laboratories across a campus, they do not provide the access to information, librarian expertise and interdisciplinary integration that academic and research libraries sustain. In addition, Academic libraries provide (for the haves and the have-nots) spaces or commons - primarily "high-tech ready" in nature that offer general and subject-specific equipment, software and web-delivered content for individual access and study. They also offer collaborative spaces for students to work together with each other in small groups and with classroom faculty to study and create content.

Academic libraries provide spaces for STEM and STEAM discovery or maker space environments for students anywhere in the program or the curriculum especially those who don't have access to departmental labs, where spaces are often reserved for students majoring in those specific areas. Academic libraries provide open labs and flexible, individual computer spaces with equipment and software unique to special research or subject area populations, such as geographic information systems or statistical software packages to process data used in the study of social and natural sciences. They also serve special needs students, faculty members and staff. They provide not only access to content within their buildings but also equipment and technology that students can check out and use in their educational pursuits. (This takes space for not only storage but also delivery of resources.) Meanwhile, academic library professionals, often faculty members themselves, are experts in areas of research, and they work in partnership with classroom instructors in the design and delivery of curricula. They also partner with classroom faculty members in the design and delivery of courses requiring critical thinking and information literacy as well as subject-targeted assignments; are champions for and leaders in open educational resources that provide vetted, free content for students who can't afford textbooks, a large part of the price tag of college; build digital as well as print collections to reflect classroom faculty research, recommended research by other experts and subject content required by external regional and national accreditation bodies such as digital and print content for the health sciences and business-management curricula; and, acquire, curate, design and deliver online content and competency lessons (online tutorials, streamed office hours with library experts) for students to access on their smartphones.

• E-books can be lent by libraries just like normal books, rules EU's top court

The judgment confirms the opinion of Maciej Szpunar, advocate general to the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU), who said back in June that lending out e-books should be permitted in the 28-member-state bloc provided authors are fairly compensated in the same way as for physical books.

The court was asked to rule on a case brought by the association of Dutch public libraries-Vereniging Openbare Bibliotheken (VOB) against Stichting Leenrecht, an authors' rights collecting foundation. VOB argued that the rules should be the same for digital lending as for traditional books, and the District Court in The Hague asked the CJEU to clarify whether that view was consistent with a 2006 EU copyright directive on rentals and lending. Specifically, VOB wanted to use a "one copy, one user" model. A copy of an e-book is placed on the server of a public library, allowing a member of the public to download it. Only one copy at a time can be lent out in this way. After the lending period for the e-book expires, the downloaded copy can no longer be used by that user, but another copy can be downloaded by someone else.

In this ruling, the CJEU said this approach was fine, provided the e-book lending met any other conditions placed on library books by national legislation, as was the case in the Netherlands. The court also underlined that the library e-book must be obtained legally "the public lending exception does not apply to the making available by a public library of a digital copy of a book in the case where that copy has been obtained from an unlawful source."

E. Ramesh Librarian and Library Team P. Sudhakar, Sandhya, P. Shanthi Sree, K.Vittal, K. Raja Reddy participated in the program.

Booksleuths – the Library Committee celebrated the National Library Week -Libros at Symbiosis Institute of Business Management, Hyderabad on 14th-19th November, 2016

As a part of the National Library Week Celebrations, the Library Committee, Booksleuths, had conducted two main programs, a book exhibition and an interactive session with Mrs. Meera Shenoy, a renowned Author and a Speaker.

The Book exhibition was organized from 14th – 19th November, 2016. It consisted of two sections – display of Academic books by Shah Book House and Fiction, Non Fiction and Best Sellers books by World Book Links. The exhibition had a humongous collection of more than Seven Thousand Books. In the exhibition, we received an amazing response from the faculties and students from MBA as well as the Law School. The visitors were fascinated by the wide and unique collections. The students were engrossed and spent quality time browsing, discussing and selecting the books they liked. The exposure towards the latest collection awed the students and had rightly captured their taste and interests.

On the 16th November, 2016, we were delighted by the visit of the famous Author – Mrs. Meera Shenoy the author of book “YOU CAN”. She is also a Social Entrepreneur and the founder of “youth4jobs”. Mrs. Meera Shenoy, helps companies to have an “inclusive” workforce. She has been a Team Member of Advisor to the Prime Minister on Skilling, Senior Advisor UNDP Skilling and Employment, World Bank and EGMM (Employment Generation and Marketing Mission). Upon receiving a warm welcome at the college, she was escorted by the members of BookSleuths – The Library Committee and for a campus visit. She particularly liked the aesthetics, ambience and collection of the SIBM - Library. The visit was followed by her interactive session with the students. She narrated her journey which was truly inspiring. She talked about how they had met success after encountering infinite number of hurdles. Her motivating success stories of some of the disabled persons for whom Youth4Jobs had been a path breaker for, had left a profound impact on the audience's mind.
